IT'S TIME TO EXPECT MORE

AUGUST 2025.

Summer holidays are all about switching off. But before you board that plane or hit the road, a little planning can go a long way—especially when it comes to travel insurance.

Whether it's a quick Schengen escape, a long family vacation, or a business trip squeezed between beach days—having the right coverage means you actually get to relax.

5 Summer Travel Mistakes to Avoid

(and How Insurance Helps)

#1 Forgetting to check visa requirements

Schengen countries often require travel insurance. Don't get stuck at the border—check your policy before departure.

#2 Thinking "it won't happen to me"

Lost luggage, medical bills abroad, or cancelled flights can happen to anyone. Travel insurance can save you from out-of-pocket stress.

#3 Booking everything last minute—except your insurance

Make your coverage part of your travel prep. The earlier you reach out, the more we can help you understand your options and find a plan that suits your destination and needs.

#4 Not declaring pre-existing conditions

Hiding medical info might save time now—but it can cancel your entire claim later. Be honest; we'll help you find the right fit.

#5 Skipping the fine print

Not all policies are equal. Some don't cover adventure sports, others exclude baggage loss. Let's review it together.

Planning a Trip? Let's talk travel insurance.

Before you zip up your suitcase or book that last-minute flight, take a moment to think about the coverage that could protect your journey from unexpected surprises.

First, consider your destination. Some countries—especially those in the Schengen Area—require proof of travel insurance before they even let you in. It's not just paperwork; it's peace of mind.

Next, think about what you've already paid for. Flights, hotels, tours—what happens if your trip gets delayed or cancelled? A good policy can reimburse those costs and help you avoid losing money before your holiday even begins.

Then there's medical coverage. No one wants to think about getting sick abroad, but if it happens, the last thing you want is a hefty bill in a foreign hospital. Travel insurance ensures you get the help you need—without worrying about the price tag.

And finally, ask yourself: Are your future trips likely to look similar—business, leisure, or both? Understanding your travel patterns helps us recommend the right type of policy for your plans—without overpaying or overcomplicating.

Because no matter where you're headed—business or leisure, solo or with family—having the right coverage makes all the difference.

Send us your destination & dates, we'll do the rest.

- Confirm destination-specific requirements
- Check if adventure activities are included
- Add trip cancellation cover if you're pre-paying hotels/flights
- Carry your emergency contact details
- Know how to file a claim before you travel

Broker's Tip of the Month:

"TRAVEL INSURANCE ISN'TJUST FOR THE TRIP."

It's for the 48 hours before and after you return—think delays, lost baggage, or last-minute emergencies.

Whether it's a weekend in Europe or a month in Southeast Asia—we tailor policies to fit your exact itinerary.

Enjoy your summer with peace of mind. Stay safe, stay covered.
